TIME

Past • Present • Future • Memories • Hopes • Dreams

Time is the one thing we can never put off. It is the driving force in the universe. Regardless of the events in our individual lives, the cosmos marches on. Sooner or later the events in the world are going to catch up with the events in our lives. It is for this reason that time is of the essence.

Do you ever stop to ponder the passage of time? Since a fraction of life will disappear as this sentence is being read, the significance of every moment becomes clear. We often take for granted our time on earth until it's too late. We should make the effort to contemplate the blessings of life.

"No day but today!" is a line in the play Rent. Every minute counts. Our time at CBA has been filled with deadlines, ranging from daily homework and long term projects to extracurricular activities and sports, presenting us with the challenge to fit more and more into our 24-hour day. As seniors we encounter more deadlines—SATs, college applications, campus visits—but we are already well-versed in navigating time.

“To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven.”

—Ecclesiastes 3:1

The events and responsibilities of our daily lives can easily overwhelm us. We are so focused on achieving our goals in the future that we completely ignore the present. Why must we conform to the fast-paced, jet setting, “burn the midnight oil” demands of contemporary society? Is there no other way to measure success than by how many hours are spent at work? Sure, it's necessary to fulfill one's obligations and responsibilities, but time for oneself, one's family, and one's friends is often put aside. Time must be invested in individual development and in relationships if any sense of satisfaction is to result from all the hard work.

Inevitably, things change over the course of time. When a student enters CBA, he is thrust into a completely new environment. Part of the challenge is trying to get the most out of academic and extracurricular opportunities. During a student's four years at the Academy, he forms new friendships, values, and perceptions about the world. Furthermore, these relationships and ideas carry the student into the future.

“Always in motion is the future.” —Yoda

T.S. Eliot wrote, “Time present and time past / Are both perhaps present in time future, / And time future contained in time past.” Whether it’s tomorrow, the next day, or months and years ahead, the future is inevitably awaiting one’s arrival. Everyone looks to a different point in the future. Some are concerned with 2:32 p.m. today, while others think about college and the “Great Beyond.” One’s goals and motivation to succeed determine the scope of one’s picture of the future. It is imperative that one prepare and envision the future. Having some idea of others’ expectations as well as our personal goals is essential to meeting the future with confidence.

It is good to know that there are people who have been with us through it all—good times and bad times—and that they will continue to be with us in the future. These are people from our past, present, and future—they are our true friends. It is together, with their help, that we face our future unafraid.

*“Dost thou love life?
Then do not squander
time, for that’s the stuff life is made of.”*

—Ben Franklin

*“Take care of the minutes, for the hours will take care of themselves.”
—Lord Chesterfield*

“Time speeds away irretrievably.”

—Virgil

For twenty-seven years, Mr. John Przygocki has served the faculty and students of Christian Brothers Academy as a teacher, athletic director, mentor, role model, and friend. His patience in trying circumstances and his calm demeanor are well-known, as are his willingness to whatever is needed to help out. His methodical approach to education instills in his students an attention to detail; his gentle manner lets them know that he cares about each one of them. This individual attention is also given to student athletes, coaches, and his colleagues.

Whereas Mr. Przygocki has given so much of himself to this community, and whereas he has earned the respect of his students and fellow teachers, and whereas he has provided a fine example of Lasallian principles in action, it seems particularly appropriate that he be honored in this way. Congratulations, Mr. Przygocki!

Religion classes are a requirement for all students, all four years that they're at CBA, and for good reason! Religious Studies is a different kind of class because the subject — and the teachers — have a direct and immediate impact on students' lives. So many of the classes here are geared to the future; religion classes address the future, but have immediate relevance.

Mr. Sewnig isn't going to show you how to write a paper so that when you're in college, you'll know how to do it; Mr. Sewnig guides his students through the best textbook he knows, the Bible, to write their lives in a way that is pleasing to God. Ms. Tracey isn't going to show you how follow the stock market and apply for a job in marketing; she will open up your eyes of faith to help you find a position in heaven. The Religion Department, as a whole, is a tangible work force working with the students, not just for them.

Although solidly academic, the Religious Studies department offers more than just intellectual development: it offers an open, understanding, and educated ear to the students. Our religion teachers are here for anyone and everyone, Catholic or not, Christian or not, to listen and talk to, even it's just about life in general. They help to build us up completely, treating us as whole persons, not just undernourished intellects.

The prestigious CBA Math Department has a legacy of excellence. CBA students are required to take three years of mathematics in which they can take advantage of CBA's vast selection of Standard, Honors, Accelerated, and Advanced Placement courses. The most basic math course offered to freshman is Algebra I Standard, from which they can secure a solid foundation to build upon during their next four years. The most challenging course is Advanced Placement Calculus BC, which provides an advantage for students wishing major in mathematics, physical sciences, or engineering.

In addition to rigorous courses, the CBA math department also has an encouraging faculty, consisting of eight of the most talented teachers in the field. The teachers are a diverse group, including the experienced Brother Christian to the young and upbeat Mr. Speidel. We also have math teams competing on the varsity and junior varsity levels for those students who want to represent CBA and carry on its legacy of excellence. —Conall O'Callaghan ('01)

department

Students at CBA are required to take four years of English. English II covers American Literature, English III reviews British Literature and the basics of writing a research paper, and Senior English surveys major literary and philosophical works. In addition, students write various literary analyses and expository essays that stress understanding of grammar, style, and vocabulary. Students that show a particular competency in language may take AP English. Seniors may choose from a wide variety of electives, including Film Study, Myths, Dreams, and Cultures, Journalism, Humanities, and Writing Workshop, and for those interested in music, a course in music theory is offered.

The CBA History Department offers courses are designed to increase the students knowledge of the world's major events while providing the foundation for a intellectual discipline. This is achieved through a variety of courses such as World History, either Standard or Honors, US History I and II, either Standard and Honors along with a wide variety of Advanced Placement Courses. Advanced Placement courses include AP US History, AP European History, AP Economics, AP Psychology are provided for students who demonstrate excellence in the field. Introduction to Business, Economics, American Government and Pyschology are standard courses provided for students that want to develop a strong foundation in the respective fields. Intro to Business is acquaints the students with various aspects of modern commerce. Economics is also an introductory course established to enlighten the students with different philosophical views of the modern business world. American Government, taught by Mr. Keane is a course that helps students better understand the government of the United States. Students interested in building a foundation for future study of the complexities of the brain are invited to take Pyschology taught by Father John. This introductory course covers all aspects of the human brain. Students are taught about different mental diseases along with learning about the processes of the brain.

Physical Education

The Phys Ed Department promotes the classical ideal that man should possess a sound mind in a sound body. The students are led to this goal through classroom instruction as well as physical activity on the field of play.

Computer

The Computer Department provides Academy students with a rich grounding in the history, theory, and application of technology. The course of studies includes word processing, spreadsheet, database and presentation graphics, as well as webpage design and application program development. An Advanced Placement course is available to upperclassmen.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

The Foreign Language Department offers courses in French, Spanish, and Latin, ranging from introductory classes up to fifth-year in French and Spanish. The courses are designed to make the students familiar with the various cultures that are represented, not merely with the grammar and vocabulary. The Foreign Language Department also sponsors clubs devoted to a deepening each students' enjoyment and understanding of his chosen second language. Students whose academic performance is extraordinary in Spanish and French are rewarded with membership in the respective Honor Societies. Trips to restaurants serving various ethnic foods, and diverse cultural field trips enhance the curriculum, and such activities as Language Immersion Days, and Foreign Language Week round out the bill.

Your pupils must see that your motives are not restricted to merely human ends, and that you are above the influence of those passions which take away, or at least diminish the respect due to those who are in charge of others. —St. De La Salle

CBA's Library has a new look this year, as computers have become increasingly important to the way that information is served to the students and faculty. These changes were made in order to have better access to Internet research, CD-ROM databases, as well as other technology-based educational opportunities. In addition to increasing access to these resources, the new arrangement permits a superior working environment, and better access to the variety of traditional resources. Classes are regularly brought to the Library / Resource Center, and there is hardly a time when the computers are idle or the tables are empty.

department

Guidance Services does its usual fine job of helping students to chart their individual courses through life at the Academy, and to plan for what lies beyond. In recent times, the role of this department has expanded, providing ever-better responses to the challenges faced by contemporary students. From regular contact with the students to crisis intervention, the counselors offer experience, compassion, and a consoling (or, when needed, a challenging) word.

CBA's science department boasts a wide variety of courses, especially those that go beyond the normal biology, chemistry and physics classes. For example, there are Environmental Science, Environmental Issues, Anatomy and Physiology, Astronomy, Advanced Topics in Science, and Marine Biology. This department also offers five Advanced Placement classes, all of which offer instruction in a specialized area. Biology, Chemistry, Physics B and C, and Environmental Science. The department makes use of three new state-of-the-art science labs for many of its classes. The Biology lab has a variety of animals, which is a great source of interest for every student. The Chemistry lab is fully equipped with computers, and digital measuring instruments are used frequently. The Physics lab is totally hands-on and students enjoy participating in labs. Every student must take three years of science, but many decide to take more than that. —David Scholl ('01)

We, the students of Christian Brothers Academy, would like to dedicate this space to the memory of one of our beloved faculty members, Ms. Lorraine Calderon. Having passed into the eternal realm of Our Lord, she leaves behind a deep impression on the hearts of her faculty colleagues and her students. Ms. Calderon had an advanced degree in physics, with which she could have enjoyed a very prestigious and lucrative career. She decided, however, to sacrifice the prestige, and share her knowledge of the subject she loved at a Catholic high school. Despite several hardships in her life, she remained determined and focused. For more than seven years at CBA, Ms. Calderon modeled a true Christian life of generosity to her students, friendship to her fellow teachers, and active participation in school liturgies. In the classroom, she expected her students to work hard and to the best of their ability. She strongly encouraged academic integrity and respect among her students. In short, Ms. Calderon touched the hearts of both students and teachers at the Academy, and is sorely missed. It is with great respect that we acknowledge a loving member of the CBA family, who will remain a true example of Jesus to us all, Ms. Calderon.

Brother Thomas Wilkinson

Who is this man, one of four children. Born a twin of immigrant Irish parents in the South Bronx? A man indeed of numerous names: Br. Cassian, Br. Thomas, Br. Wilkinson, Br. Cassian Thomas Wilkinson, Br. Tom, just plain Tom, Tommy, or commonly among the brothers as Wilkie. But far more numerous than his names are the extraordinary number of friends and former students whom he customarily referred to as "cousins."

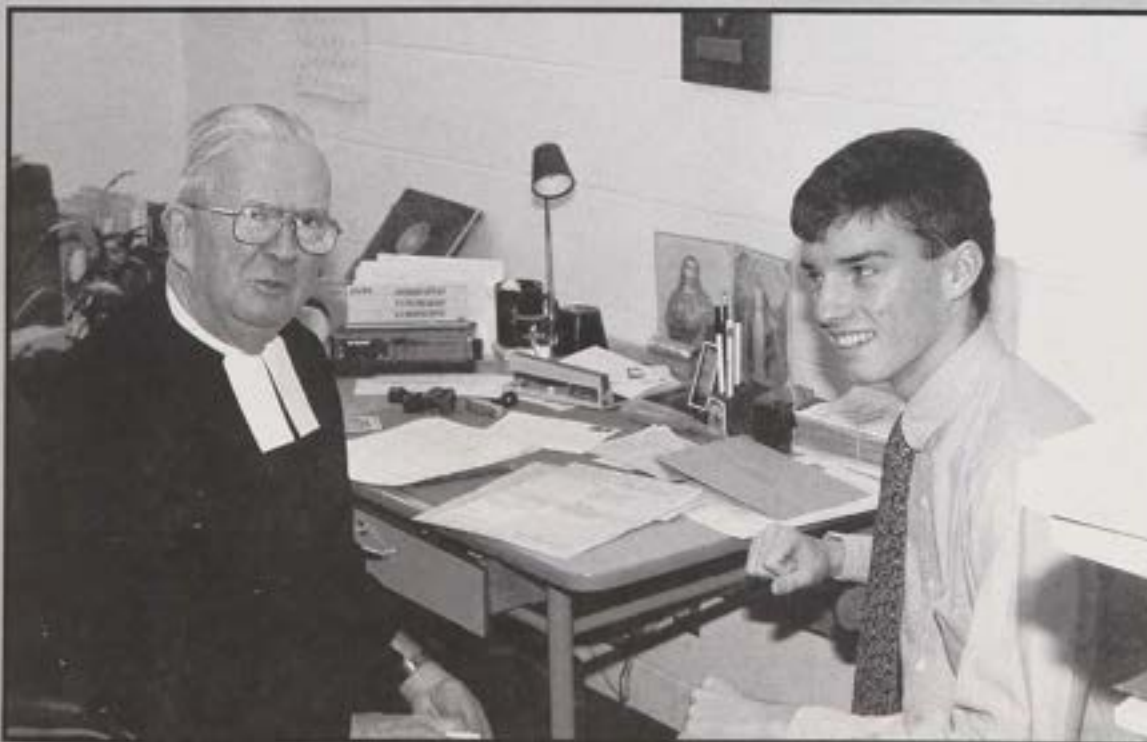

What attracted people to Brother Cassian Thomas Wilkinson? What was so special about him? Simply, he loved people and they loved him.

How can we explain, how can we understand the charming magnetism and exceptional success of Brother Cassian Thomas? Tireless devotion to his students, to his responsibilities within the Brothers' communities, and in ongoing service to each and everyone. His reputation in the admissions world is legendary. He is gentle, kind, thoughtful, concerned, sensitive, yet a strong man who always put others before himself. To know him is to love him.

Brother Thomas' gentle but firm approach led to lifelong friendships with his students because he cared about each one. He took time to learn about their families and their concerns. Always reminding each person that he would pray for them and he thanked them for spending time with him. What he didn't realize is how much and how many people cherished him. He truly is a giant within our profession. A quiet, gentle, holy man.

Mrs. Bracken, as she was leaving at the end of each day, would say "See you tomorrow, brother," and he would reply "God willing." We who knew him were the lucky ones. He will long be remembered in our hearts. Although he has left many loved ones behind, there are many to welcome him home. See you tomorrow Brother, God willing.

CAMPUS LIFE

LITURGY

CBA is blessed to have two ordained men on staff: Father John Folchetti and Deacon John Fitzsimmons. They have fostered growth in an already-strong program of prayer and devotion at the Academy. Of course, Mass is celebrated with the whole community on special occasions. On Ash Wednesday there is a special service to prepare for the season of Lent. During Lent and Advent there are particular devotional observances, including communal praying of the Rosary or the Stations of the Cross. On First Fridays, the Eucharist is exposed for quiet adoration throughout the school day, culminating in Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Throughout the year, small groups, especially religion classes, will gather for special Masses or penance services.

Of course, the hidden treasure is daily morning Mass. Each day the Sacred Mysteries are celebrated in the school chapel. This year has seen an increased participation by students and parents. During Lent and Advent, special invitations are extended to the various homerooms to attend Mass together. During the month of November, particular attention is paid to remembering our Beloved Dead at Mass.

Everyone is called to participate fully at Mass, each according to his proper role. Some are called to serve the community as acolytes, readers, sacred musicians, sacristans, ministers of hospitality, or extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion. Students are selected to serve the community on the basis of character and desire. All who serve are charged especially with the duty to serve as witnesses to Christ in their daily lives.

The program of liturgy, para-liturgical celebrations, and communal devotions is intended to foster an ever-greater personal commitment to prayer and sanctity in the lives of the individuals here at CBA.

You Can't Take It With You

Pegasus Productions' fall '99 production was the George Kaufmann-Moss Hart classic You Can't Take it With You. This Pulitzer-Prize-winning play follows the hilarious antics of an eccentric Depression-era family and its friends--a group which includes a tax-evading patriarch, a firework-making father (and his toga-clad assistant), a tutu-wearing daughter (and her Russian ballet teacher), and other oddballs, from an IRS agent to a countess. The production continued the Pegasus tradition: a talented cast (nearly two-dozen in all), great sets and costumes, and terrific direction. Most importantly, it was fun for all involved.

GIVING US RELIGIOUS UNDERSTANDING.

GURU is one of the senior religion classes that is comprised of only 25 students who were selected because they best met the required qualifications. The seniors are each assigned a group of about 10 freshmen who they meet with once per cycle. The seniors meet as a class the other 5 days of the school cycle. The objective of this program is to kindle relationships among the seniors and freshmen via sharing their experiences and opinions, getting to know each other, and developing a sense of belonging. The GURUs themselves meet to seek a self-awareness that can be attained through reflection on their experiences within the group and in their personal lives. In September, all the members in the GURU program participate in Freshmen Day of Reflection, where they talk, meditate, and play cooperative games, so that everyone can begin to know one another.

Christian Service Learning

Christian Service Learning's main focus is volunteer work. This class recognizes the importance of assisting the community. Each student is required to spend at least two hours each week volunteering his time and effort, such as working in a hospital, working at latchkey, tutoring homeless children, teaching CCD classes, building homes, or teaching young children how to swim. Along with his service work, a student is expected to write about his experiences in a journal. This helps the student develop an understanding of his relationship with God and with others. In the third marking period, students give a presentation about their service work to the class. The best reports are then presented to underclassmen to teach them the importance of volunteer work.

Grandparents' Day

"What good is sitting alone in your room..."

On Sunday, May 7, CBA's musicians gathered one last time to share their talent with an eager crowd of parents, siblings, friends, and especially grandparents.

Justin Negraval's and "Iron Mike" DeSaye's piano solos were a real favorite with the audience. Chris Fahey saluted the Dave Matthews Band on the acoustic guitar. Everybody got a laugh from the bathrobe striptease and the Cabaret kickline.

Baccalaureate Liturgy

At nine o'clock in the morning, the Class of 2000 gathered in Henderson Theatre to begin this very important day in the best possible way: worshipping God. Father John Folchetti celebrated the Mass of the Holy Spirit, assisted by Dean John Fitzsimmons. Anthony Genovese served as acolyte.

Brock Siebert and Robert Russo assisted with seating and other hospitality arrangements. Ken Brady, Justin Negraval, and Mr. Joseph Finn supported the celebration with Sacred Music. Russell Moriarty, Justin McCarthy, and Robert Sidoti proclaimed from the Word. Vincent Chiappetta, Patrick Julian, and Brian Lovas announced the petitions of the Prayer of the Faithful.

The student Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion assisted Fr. John and Deacon John at the Rite of Communion.

Deacon John announced the Good News and Father John addressed the homily to the subject of Time. Father highlighted two distinct senses of the word time, whose meanings are conveyed in Greek by the words chronos and kairos. Chronos refers to sequential time, as might be measured by a clock. Kairos, on the other hand, speaks of a grace-filled moment. Both kinds of time are part of the human experience, and Father John reminded the Class of 2000 to be aware of both the passage of time, and those special moments, throughout their lives.

Baccalaureate Breakfast

Following the Baccalaureate Mass, the Class of 2000 gathered in the Cafeteria for a bacon-and-eggs breakfast. It was a fun and relaxing way to spend a few more minutes together before heading over to Brookdale for Graduation practice.

John McCormack's Valedictory Address

A line in a popular song reads: "Every new beginning comes from some other beginning's end" [Semisonic, Closing Time]. My fellow graduates, this evening a very important chapter in our lives closes - but a future of untold opportunity lies ahead for us all. Tonight is the final time we will be gathered together as a class. In a few brief months, we will be moving on to face new challenges — college, careers, and service — and our four years in Christian Brothers Academy will be just a memory.

The question becomes, what will we take with us as we continue on life's journey? Will we remember the sense of awe we felt the first time we walked into the school lobby? Will we recall the mornings we spent sitting in the cafeteria, or the long hours we spent in classrooms? Or will we always remember the feeling of satisfaction we felt after completing our last exams as CBA students? These priceless recollections may remain with us throughout our lives, but they will not sustain us. What will support us however, through success and failure, good times and bad, are our values - those principles that we hold dearest and would defend at any cost. Values give direction, establishing an ideal for conduct and attitude for which we can strive. This type of motivation is of immeasurable importance for success, for as William Blake quips, "The hours of folly are measured by the clock, but of wisdom no clock can measure." Further, values impart a sense of purpose, and with that comes the passion and energy of believing in something greater than oneself. There is no more revealing test of a person's merit than an examination of how that person's values withstand the trials and tribulations of daily life; if one forms firm principles, no amount of stress will be able to shake one's confidence and zeal for living.

THIRTY-EIGHTH COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

CBA's thirty-eighth graduating class received its diplomas in a commencement ceremony held in the Athletic Center at Brookdale Community College, Lincroft NJ. Domenic Menafra was selected to lead the baccalaureate procession, carrying the Crucifix — the image and symbol of our Faith. Father John Folchetti invoked God's blessing upon the Class of 2000. Brother Daniel served as the Grand Marshal, and Mr. Santanello presented the graduates. Brother Ralph presented each graduate with his diploma, and Brother Andrew was on hand to offer congratulations. Brother Ralph closed the ceremonies by leading the new graduates and the entire assembly in a prayer.

On behalf of the graduating class, Patrick Neal Lenaghan saluted all who were assembled, and John McCormack had the honor of delivering the valedictory address.

The Father's Club was present to ensure the smooth movement of people throughout the auditorium, and the Alumni Association congratulated its newest prospective members with refreshments in the Student Commons.

Though rain threatened throughout the day, and finally did come down, the weather held long enough to complete the ceremonies and allow the new alumni to celebrate with their families and classmates.

From Father John's Invocation:

“We ask, Heavenly Father, that You protect them wherever they may go. Guard them under the shadow of Your wings. Keep them safe from all harm of body and spirit. And wherever they go, may they be faithful to Your Word and proclaim by their actions your love for all humankind.”

The question remains then, what values will we take with us from our time at CBA?

One could easily look to the Value-of-the-Month program for inspiration; tolerance, dignity, community, and honesty being just a few of the many worthwhile ideals highlighted during the past two years. If we look closely at our experiences at the Academy, however, we find a pattern of values and morals that have been shown to us since our first days as freshmen.

We might recall our history classes, which imparted to us both an understanding of the past and a way to analyze the present; from there we can take a sense of tradition, of interconnectedness and interdependence on others, and of civic duty.

Perhaps we might look to our classes in science and mathematics, which gave us an understanding of the world around us and a glimpse of just how powerful knowledge can be. We could also look to our classes in foreign languages, which showed us the value of cultural diversity.

Or, we could heed the lessons of our religion classes, which taught us about spirituality, morality, the Church, and Gospel values, as well as how to temper the rational perception of the natural sciences with the humble, respectful essence of the Christian vision.

We might even look to our extra-curricular activities, which instilled in us a sense of commitment and dedication. Finally, we could recall CBA athletics, which through both success and disappointment always presented a shining example of sportsmanship, hard work, and synergy.

But we need only look to the people around us — the Christian Brothers, our teachers, our parents, and our friends — for evidence of the power of values. Without their help, none of our success, health, or happiness would be possible, and it is through their constant support and guidance that we have come this far and are able to stand here tonight.

Still, what are we to do with these values that have been presented to us?

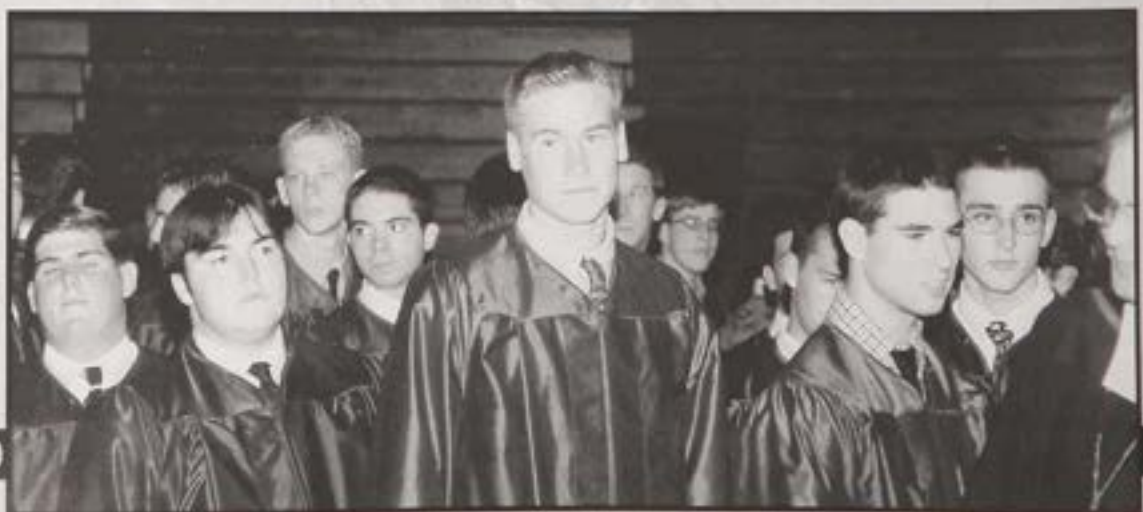

My fellow graduates, tonight we are sent on a mission — a mission to serve others by putting to use our values. At the heart of our mission is another essential value: a commitment to justice. Justice brings together all other values: it calls us to see ourselves as connected to other people, challenges us to have sincere concern for the dignity and wellbeing of others, and demands that we use our gifts and talents to reach out to those in need.

In the words of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, "Justice is conscience, not a personal conscience but the conscience of the whole of humanity. Those who clearly recognize the voice of their own conscience usually recognize also the voice of justice."

Thus, in building our own system of values we are tapping into a global network of people all working towards a common goal — the improvement of the quality of life for all human beings. And we must do this selflessly, reaching to out everyone — not just those who can give us something in return. We should strive to be wise enough to understand this mission, dedicated enough to undertake it, caring enough to believe in it, and humble enough to admit that we need assistance, both from God and other people. It should be our mission, today and everyday, to carry on the quest for justice, Jesus' quest for justice. No matter what path we choose in life, we should remain focused on this, which is in fact the reason we are here: because some three hundred years ago St. John Baptist de la Salle took the mission of justice to a new level.

So, as we bid farewell to Christian Brothers Academy, let us pledge to ourselves, to one another, and to God that we will remain true to our values and open to the voice of justice.

Patrick Lenaghan's Salutory Address

Good Evening and welcome to the Christian Brothers Academy Graduation of the Class of 2000. I stand before you this evening as a proud member of a class that has survived 513 days of school, 86 A-days, 48 exams, 16 summer books, and a mere four snow days to break up the monotony of the seemingly endless winter months. We have also shared and enjoyed over 1,000 free periods, 16 weeks of much anticipated vacation, and 4,104 repetitions of the prayer to St. John Baptist de la Salle. Through good times and bad, we have developed physically, spiritually, and academically while forming our well-respected reputation as the CBA Class of 2000. However, our time here at CBA has indeed come to an end, and we gather here this evening to celebrate the success of 208 very worthy young men.

We all remember that day in September 1996 when we walked through the doors of CBA for the first time. We arrived filled with doubt and anxiety about the years to come. Since that day, we have grown together in friendship to contribute to a community that has been enriched by the many gifts and talents we have shared. Through academic instruction, social interaction, and spiritual reflection, our doubt and fear as freshmen was gradually replaced with confidence and an ability to accept our changing perceptions of both CBA and the world. As we receive our diplomas this evening, we are proud to say that we have excelled in every aspect of Academy life. But more importantly, we have acquired the intangible qualities that will define us as men of integrity and ingenuity.

As we honor our achievements as graduates, we must balance our triumph with a sense of humility for the many blessings we have been given and with a spirit of thanksgiving to those who have helped us reach our goals. To the faculty and staff at CBA, we say thank you for creating a stimulating learning environment that has helped us to extend our intellectual limits. We thank our fellow classmates for the lasting friendships and happy memories that have made our high school years so much fun. And our families deserve a special note of gratitude for their unending love and support during our tumultuous journey to manhood. Socrates believed that the most important quality anyone can possess is the ability to "know thyself." At CBA we were taught that the best way to know ourselves is to develop a relationship with Jesus. As we move on to college, we will be challenged in new and unusual ways. Our morals will be tested, our faith in God will be questioned, and our minds will be made to think quite differently. Hopefully, the same Christian values which have defined our high school education at CBA will continue to guide us as we face these new challenges in college.

Although we will eventually forget some of the academic material covered in class, the tradition of excellence that we have epitomized while at CBA will help us to succeed in life. To my fellow graduates, to whom so much has been given, I leave you this evening with one final piece of advice, in the words of the famous American distance runner Steve Prefontaine: "To give anything less than your best is to sacrifice the gift."

When they had gathered together they asked him, "Lord, are you at this time going to restore the kingdom to Israel?" He answered them, "It is not for you to know the times or seasons that the Father has established by his own authority. But you will receive power when the holy Spirit comes upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, throughout Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." When he had said this, as they were looking on, he was lifted up, and a cloud took him from their sight.

Seventy is the sum of our years,
or eighty, if we are strong;
Most of them are sorrow and toil;
they pass quickly, we are all but gone.

Teach us to count our days aright,
that we may gain wisdom of heart.

Relent, O LORD! How long?
Have pity on your servants!

Fill us at daybreak with your love,
that all our days we may sing for joy.

Do not in spirit become quickly discontented,
for discontent lodges in the bosom of a fool.

Do not say: How is it that former times were better than these? For it is not in wisdom that you ask about this. Wisdom and an inheritance are good, and an advantage to those that see the sun. For the protection of wisdom is as the protection of money; and the advantage of knowledge is that wisdom preserves the life of its owner.

Consider the work of God. Who can make straight what he has made crooked? On a good day enjoy good things, and on an evil day consider: Both the one and the other God has made, so that man cannot find fault with him in anything.

Ecclesiastes:9-14

Now God grant I speak suitably and value these endowments at their worth:

For he is the guide of Wisdom and the director of the wise. For both we and our words are in his hand, as well as all prudence and knowledge of crafts.

For he gave me sound knowledge of existing things, that I might know the organization of the universe and the force of its elements.
The beginning and the end and the midpoint of times, the changes in the sun's course and the variations of the seasons; cycles of years, positions of the stars, natures of animals, tempers of beasts, powers of the winds and thoughts of men, uses of plants and virtues of roots-

Such things as are hidden I learned and such as are plain; for Wisdom, the artificer of all, taught me.

Wisdom 7:15-22

it's TIME to say goodbye ...

This yearbook can only capture and preserve a fraction of time out of all of our lives, but it will bring back memories of the experiences that may have had a significant impact on our lives, or simply brought us a smile and a laugh that day in school. Whether you are the kind of person that flips through the Yearbook once (in which case you probably won't ever read this), the kind that reviews it frequently, or the kind that peruses the pages once a year, you can relate to the images within this publication because you are a part of the Christian Brothers Academy community. Each one of us has experienced some facet of the academic, athletic, spiritual, and social traditions of this institution; the images of Pegasus 2000 are a representation of our involvement and influence in further shaping this tradition.

The Executive Editors would like to reiterate to the faculty and student body that the Yearbook was created for you, and in reality by you, since it was your presence and actions that filled the pages of this book.

We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to Mr. Prioli, for his unselfish dedication and sacrifice of time and energy that made Pegasus 2000 possible.

We also want to thank the section editors, general staff, and photographers for their commitment of time, effort, and talent in the pursuit of excellence. Vinnie Illiano, Pete Iorizzo, Nikhil Raswant, Kevin Levy, Andrew Saada, Mike DeSaye, Ryan Stronczer, and Brian Rizman are to be especially recognized for their exceptional effort in this regard. A special thanks is extended to Doug Piccinnini for painting the unique image that is preserved as this year's cover. (In case you missed it, open the book up and view the front and back cover together.)

Lest we forget: Thanks also to Mr. David Schofield, Brother Ralph Montedoro, and Brother Dan Gardner for their gracious support through the production of this book.

Time goes by so fast, people go in and out of your life. You must never miss the opportunity to tell these people how much they mean to you.
—Cheers

Until you value yourself, you won't value your time. Until you value your time, you will not do anything with it.
